Command Financial's New Office

New York, November 4, 2019: Command Financial is pleased to announce their new office at 125 Broad Street, New York, NY 10004

About Command Financial:

Command Financial has continually redefined financial printing for more than 25 years by offering the latest in fully integrated technology-based solutions and personalized service. Command provides a full range of services including state-of-the-art typesetting, highly experienced customer service, in-house proofreading, EDGAR, XBRL/iXBRL, language translation, extensive in-house press capacity, and mail/distribution. Command also offers industry-leading content management through their Command Automated Publishing System, which is a content management and automated document assembly tool that uses an intuitive user interface and a database driven virtual library, allowing clients to manage and repurpose information across prospectuses, shareholder reports, and other documents. Through innovation and service, Command Financial has become a trusted and preferred vendor to many of the leading public companies, law firms and investment companies worldwide.
